Weather Forecaster Tells All--- About How It's Done

Assistant Meteorologist Rolen L. Cornelius takes a look at the aneroid barometer in the Atlanta office of the weather bureau. The office does its forecasting from data wired here every morning from 90 stations over the country, and from a knowledge of local conditions. The instruments record the weather "after it arrives," not before it comes, as a lot of people seem to think, it was explained.

TRUSTEE DECLARES

Manufacturers Maintain Faith in Organization's Wholesale Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28 .- William Wardall, sole trustee of McKesson & Robbins, Inc., has issued the first formal statement he has made respecting the case. Mr. Wardall said:

"The sensational criminal charges against certain officers have tended to obscure the important fact that the main organization of the company is sound and that its principal service to the public is an essential one. That service is the wholesaling and distribution to retail stores throughout the nation not only of its own products but also drugs and other products manufactured by some 4,500 other companies.
"While the fictitious operations of Coster and his group in crude drugs were carried out in terms of equally fictitious warehouses and companies, the real business of McKesson & Robbins in manufacturing drugs and other preparations in accordance with the rigid standards of the food and drug act and in wholesaling the equally high-grade products of other manufacturers, is continat a concert given by Miss Moore yesterday. During the concert the singer stopped before the Duchess' box and curtsied. The controversy was on.

The Riviera winter colony was divided on the issue, with the Americans and French insisting the Duchess might just as well be given royal prerogatives, since they believed she is certain to be given them soon anyway.

On the other hand, some of the English say the Duchess never will have these honors. The Countess of Pembroke, an expert on court etiquette, definitely is opposed to curtsying before her.

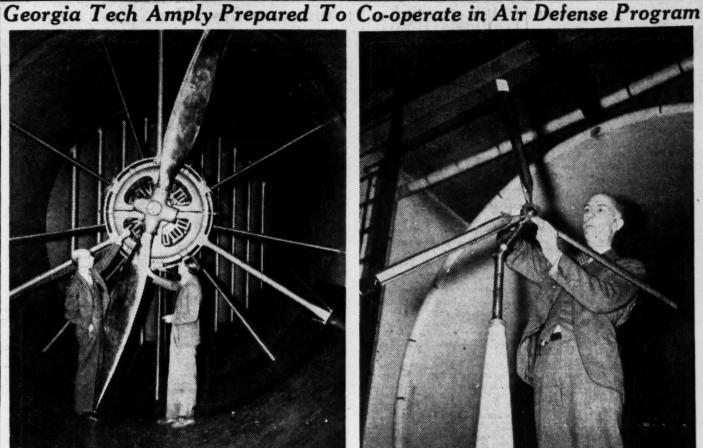

"If the Duchess is made a royal highness," she was quoted in London's Sunday Dispatch as saying recently, "then I shall be pleased to drop her a curtsy."

(After her marriage to the Duke of Windsor, the former King Edward VIII of Britain, the Duchess was listed officially as the 29th duchess, whereas her husband was the third Duke of the realm., Contrary to the reported hopes of the Duke, she was not given royal status.)

Lady Pembroke was quoted in the Sunday dispatch as saying she had scolded Lady Diana Cooper, wife of the former first lord of the admiralty, and Mrs. Euan Wallace, wife of the parliamentary secretary for the Board of Trade, for curtseying to the Duchess in Paris.

Persons close to the Windsors insist, however, that the Duchess of Westminster, Lady Brownlow, and Lady Mendl as well as dozens of other prominent English wom-en bend their knees to the Duch-

CAN BE USED FREELY...VapoRub is an external treatment. There's no "dosing"—no risks of stomach upsets. You simply massage it on throat, chest, and back.

ACTS DIRECT . . . VapoRub goes right to work to bring relief, two direct ways at once: (1) It acts direct through the skin like a poultice; (2) Its medicated vapors, released by the warmth of the body, are inhaled direct to the irritated air-passages with every breath. This direct poultice-and-vapor action quickly loosens phlegm—clears the air-passages—checks tendency to cough—eases muscular soreness or tightness—relieves local congestion—brings comfort and invites restful sleep.

A TASK JUST BEGUN

There is general satisfaction with the peace declaration finally obtained at Lima, despite the expressed regret of at least one nation that it is not strong enough for the circumstances that gave cause for its drafting. It may, in time to come, be turned against the United States should Latin American nations extend the principles of expropriation, but for the present, at least, it must be regarded as advantageous in

Now that the declaration has been obtained, however, and the conference closed on a note of co-operation, it cannot be thought that the work of the United States in extending and maintaining freedom of institutions in the Western Hemisphere is done. It has, to the contrary, only been started.

There will remain the concentrated machinations of the totalitarian nations against established authority in these states, with the hope of installing in power regimes friendly to European countries. The only hope that this impact will not be overwhelming is development of the lands to the south in the democratic spirit, and the further education of their peoples to the ideals of liberty.

The role of the United States will rest in greater co-operation, in the lending of technical and educational assistance, and in the promotion of wider intercourse between the peoples. Peace and development of markets can only flourish in deeper understanding and sympathetic assistance.

There is, for example, the question of lending. It is all well and good for the United States to provide development funds for Latin America, yet the fact that 70 per cent of their securities owned by private investors in this country aré in default would preclude further loans without some assurance of repayment.

Washington experts who have studied the conditions advocate the lending of financial advisors to the various countries to provide stronger central bank facilities. These banks would operate to improve internal credit conditions and help stabilize foreign exchange. With adequate machinery to assure conservation of currency and exchange reserves, these countries could obtain, by purchase or loan, enough gold from the United States to improve their monetary position. This in turn would operate to free their unwieldy currency exchange systems, which make it difficult for a Latin American businessman to get dollars to pay for United States merchandise. Then, too, the loans must be geared to the ability to pay, and the ability to pay rests largely in the sum of purchases made in the United States, particularly under present world trade conditions.

On the other hand, the American businessman must learn the technique of selling and the market appeal in these countries, both of which differ widely from those of the United States and other nations that have developed a more or less cosmopolitan trade viewpoint.

The groundwork has been laid, but the design of the completed structure rests in extension of the task of the American delegates to the Lima conference.

TO REMOVE A MENACE

The Georgia Junior Chamber of Commerce has announced it will seek passage, at the coming session of the state legislature, of a law prohibiting live stock to roam the public highways. It is not, the Jaycees assert, a fence-

If such a bill can be made into law, and properly enforced afterwards, it would remove from the roads of Georgia one of their most deadly menaces. There are no records as to the number of automobiles which have been wrecked by striking cow or hog or mule upon the highway, either by day or by night. Many innocent motorists, though, have given up their lives in agony just because the owner of some four-footed piece of property considers the public highway a proper place for grazing.

It is not conceivable that enforcement of such a law would work any serious hardship, either on the livestock or its owners. Cattle roaming on the highways are nothing but a relic of the days when oxcarts and horse-drawn coaches were the vehicles in universal use. It is an absurdity that conditions of that olden age should hang over into the modern era of auto-

If there is loss involved in the enforcement of the proposed law, however, there could be little objection to the appropriation of the comparatively small sum needed to offset this, from the gasoline tax revenues. Certainly it would be using the money for the direct benefit of the users of the highways, which is the text of all preachments of automobile organizations and others who have fought against diversion of such funds for other than highway purposes.

Also it should be remembered the automobile is now so universally used that any tax moneys collected because of its operation in the state are, to all intents and purposes, collected from all citizens. The gasoline and other automobile taxes are as general in application as any impost. There can no longer be logical objection to general use of the revenue.

THIS ISN'T COLD!

"The north winds shall blow And we shall have snow, And what will poor robin do then, poor

Thermometers in Atlanta fell to 20 degrees above zero, in the early hours of Wednesday morning. The weather was, therefore, hailed as the worst cold of the winter. The weather reporter wrote harrowing details of the cold wave, of wintry blasts, icy streets and suffering humanity.

Well and good. But was it really cold, in Atlanta, this week? Do people actually believe that a mere 20 above, is cold? They should glance at the front pages of their favorite newspaper and read of sub-zero temperature readings, of 40-below and 60-mile gales, of people dying of exposure to the biting cold

They should think of snow piled in ten-foot deep drifts, of fingers and ears and noses glistening white with frost, of feet like numb clods of ice and of families held by the stern hand of real winter within houses barricaded by double doors and windows.

There is no cold in Atlanta, comparatively speaking. There are many regions in this country where a temperature reading of 20 above zero means the return of spring, where a day troubled only by an invigorating breeze, with sunshine painting the buildings with gold, is a blessed relief.

Of all times in the year there is none like a typical December day in this city-even if it is the "worst cold wave of the winter"-for justifiable rejoicing that we of Atlanta find our life cast in so pleasant a place—at least, meteorologically speaking.

CHANGING THE CALENDAR

Astronomers have been advocating reform of the calendar for generations. The most popular plan, the one backed by the Journal of Calendar Reform, would divide the year into four "exact" quarters consisting of one 31-day month and two 30-day months, or 13 weeks, or 91 days. Its chief advantage would be its perpetual, never changing, aspect. Every year would be the same, every quarter identical, every important date, every holiday would be fixed and fall on the same day year after year.

The calendar now in general use was instituted by Pope Gregory XIII in 1582 and is known as the Gregorian calendar. It is simply a modification of the Julian calendar, devised by the ancient astronomers and introduced by Julius Caesar. The length of the day, as set forth in this calendar, is measured by the rotation of the earth with reference to the sunmeasured in such a way as to make all days of equal length.

Another interval of time, however, with which the inhabitants of the earth are concerned, is the "tropical" year. It determines the return of the seasons. Its length is 365.24219 days. Due to the approximate one-fourth day "left over" each year, it is necessary to add an extra day every four years to keep the record straight. Hence, the 29th of February in leap years.

It was on December 25, of particular interest. at the present season of the year to calendar reform hobbyists, that one of the most important festivals of prehistoric man was held. In the northern hemisphere, as the days grew shorter and the nights longer with the approach of mid-December, the then benighted people felt impelled to do something about it. Great bonfires were lighted to give strength and encouragement to the ever-weakening sun, to help bring it back to "normal" radiancy. Such efforts, of course, never failed since the sun always responded to the treatment, always returned on schedule in all its brilliance. This encouraged the building of bigger and better bonfires during the dark December nights.

A universal change in the calendar, however, would have to have the approval of all nations as well as all religious bodies. If scientists can devise one to fit the vagaries of human desires and religious beliefs the world over, then they will have accomplished a miracle. In any event, a day, to the man in the street, would doubtless continue to be the same old 24 hours-the interval between the time he goes to work one day and the time he starts out the next.

GOOD NEWS

(From The Baltimore Sun.) One of the most hopeful announcements about the railroads in recent months was made yesterday by Daniel Willard, president, after a meeting of the directors of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad in New York.

For what he said was that the plans recently put forward with the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission for reducing the fixed charges of the B. & O. from $31,421,742 to $19,-.644,679 a year have met with a favorable response from some 55 per cent of the security holders affected. While a great many bondholders remain to be heard from, the responses have been so uniformly favorable to date that it has been decided that servicing of the B. & O. debt on and after January 1 will be in acordance with the terms of the new plan. It was not so stated, but the nature of Mr. Willard's announcement points to the conclusion that when all returns from those affected by the plan are heard from, there will be a majority in its favor more than sufficient to permit the effecting of a binding arrangement through the courts, if that is found necessary.

Such an outlook is important not only for the B. & O., but also for the carriers as a whole. For while it is clear that general remedies for the ills from which the railroads suffer must be applied by congress in the form of legislation, it is equally clear that particular remedies for difficulties such as confront the B. & O. and not a few lines simiarly circumstanced must come largely through the action of the individual carriers themselves. The favorable response to the B. & O.'s proposals for reducing fixed charges by putting a part of the annual interest bill on a contingent basis indicates that the way is open for action by the individual carriers when necessary. It suggests that holders of railroad bonds are aware of the advantages of financial reorganization by voluntary action rather than by long and costly receiverships in the courts.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

SPENDING AGAIN ISSUE WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—Some weeks ago, the President ordered an immense cut in WPA enrollment. While the order was modified, the post-election dismissals from WPA are remarkably drastic. Then there has been a row over heavy public works appropriations in the new budget. In the belief that the Treasury has prevented more spending of the PWA type, the economizers are jubilant. Meanwhile, the administration spenders are exceedingly glum and Altogether, there are striking signs of the approach of another spending crisis like that of last winter. The question at issue, of course, will be one of degree only, for the new budget is going to be large. The controversy will be between men who want to spend lavishly, and the moderate fellows, like the Treasury officials, who don't oppose spending, but wish to confine it to the narrowest limits.

IN THE INNER CHAMBERS Under the circumstances, there is very special interest in a little volume entitled "An Economic Program for American Democracy," recently published by seven left-wing Harvard and Tufts econo-This 91-page pamphlet has had an extraordinary impact on the New Deal spenders. Chairman Marriner S. Eccles, of the Federal Reserve Board, is said to be deeply interested in it. It has caused other leading spenders to junk the old "compensatory" Its prescriptions for Utopia are being read and quoted eagerly in the inner chambers of the administration.

The little volume carries the spenders' thinking to its logical conclusion. At the start, unbalanced budgets were excused on the grounds that the destitute must be fed and private enterprise must be "stimulated." Then temporarily unbalanced budgets were positively advocated, in the doctrine of "compensatory spending," by which the government is supposed to be lavish with cash in bad times, and to balance its books and pay off its debts when the national income rises. And now the Harvard and Tufts economists have delighted the New Deal spenders by suggesting that it's a grave error to balance the budget at all.

SPEND AND SPEND In effect, the Harvard and Tufts thinkers want to transform the national economy into a sort of perpetual motion machine. They go one better than poor old Professor Irving Fisher, who mentioned a "permanetly high plateau" back in 1929. They think in terms of a permanently rising plateau.

The key to their theory is the belief that a capitalist economy. must continue to expand in order to survive at all. Among the adepts of the mysteries of economics, it's a widely held notion that capitalism cannot stand still. It must either produce more and more of everything, as it did up to 1929, or less and less, as it did between 1929 and 1933. But the Harvard and Tufts thinkers also believe that private enterprise is no longer capable of making capitalism produce more and more. They say the government must do it. And they defend their argument by pointing to the 1937 slump, when "the government began to withdraw from its active role of distributor, and purchasing power," and "the economic system went into another tailspin.

Therefore, they offer unbalanced budgets as a long-term national policy. They would step up the spending machinery at once, gradually concentrating the major expenditures in heavy public works. They point out all sorts of "investments" the government can make, and all sorts of additional social services it should undertake. They state that government spending creates wealth, attributing the rise of national income from 1933 to 1937 soley to the spending in that period. They say:

"If the policies advocated here are steadfastly pursued, the national income can reasonably be expected to rise at a sustained rate of $4,000,000,000 to $5,000,000,000 a year."

The idea, in fact, is that while the government piles up debt, the country will grow richer and richer, thus enabling the taxpayers to meet the carrying charges on the debt with the greatest They remark, "The long-range public investment program should be financed chiefly through borrowing. This will, of course, mean a steadily increasing total of public debt." And then they add-the only fly in the ointment-"to many people, perhaps to most people, the prospect is terrifying."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

For Posterity NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—Finding himself in a mellow, holiday mood, the author of these dispatches has decided to do something rather handsome for posterity.

You know how it is when great writers die and leave their papers in a jumble. Their kinsfolk fail to appreciate the importance to the world of the spoiled leads, the magazine rejects, the letters and all which lie about their desks and permit these priceless momentoe to be carried off as souvenirs by percipient worshippers or just thrown away and burned as trash Or, if their kinnery be smart and without public spirit, these papers become the private property of their heirs and are kept in private possession, inaccessible except by special permission, grudgingly given if given at all, to students of the life and times, the inner character and the achievements of the deceased.

In either case, the result is great loss, or great denial, to the world in after years, and any man with the sense of value to permi him to recognize his own greatness and the courage to admit it to himself and the public owes it to man kind to make appropriate arrange-

Therefore your correspondent has decided to bequeath the contents of his desk to the public. The letters on the righ-hand pile latest ones, and those of the left have been lying around for some time, awaiting answers. Quite a lot of them never will be answered, anyway, because your correspondent doesn't know the answers, and there are others in both heaps which will not be answered because they are indecipherable.

There are also a lot of books and Wouldn't Be a Chance phamphlets for and against Nazi-Fascism and inism, and it has often occurred to your correspondent along with a distinct chill, that if t ever should happen here, way or another, he wouldn't stand Chinaman's chance in one of those kitchen table people's courts because he surely would be caught with subversive literature. ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

PUERTO RICO'S AIR BASE It is not generally known that a shot was fired from American soil at a German ship in the late World War. There was a shot fired—just one—and it caused the surrender of the ship even though the gun exploded and the shell it fired never reached the ship reached the ship.

The Puerto Ricans still chuckle about it and if you visit them and climb on the thick walls of the old fort which guards the harbor, they will show you the site of the old gun. It was a hold-over from the Spanish-American War. When the United States took Puerto Rico and freed its inhabitants from a rule which was as cruel as that imposed on the minorities in Germany and even more negligent as to health, the old fort was left fitted with the guns of that period.

There the fort remained, invulnerable in the old days when the solid, round cannon balls would bounce off its walls.

Came the World War. The day the United States entered, there was a German ship in the harbor. It was called upon to surrender. There were no United States ships of war there to give chase. There was only the regiment of Puerto Ricans officered by Puerto Ricans and officers from West Point.

The ship hoisted the anchor and prepared to steam. Up on top of the fort one of the old guns was filled with powder and a shell rammed in. The fuse was touched off and all hands ran for . The gun fired but exploded, injuring a few men. The soldiers watched the German ship. They were puzzled to see its forward progress halt. They saw it put about and come back to anchor and surrender. "I didn't know," said the captain, "this harbor was manned with those big disappearing coast guard guns. I knew they'd get me."

That was the only shot fired from American soil in the World

Now it is proposed an air base be established there.

MORE PLANE BASES NEEDED Additional plane bases are can deny it. Alaska, Puerto Rico, Panama, New England and the Aleutian islands all are advanced as possible sites. The President has indicated he will ask congress for appropriations to build at least 10,000 planes. The War Department some time ago indicated that 6,000 planes were adequate for national defense. It is doubtful if they contemplated the bases now proposed.

It is perfectly clear the United States must strengthen its armaments. The public generally believes this necessary. Probably most of congress believes it. A recent official survey, permitted by the government, was portrayed in a weekly magazine. It revealed the really surprisingly inadequate equipment of the army. The navy and air force are as badly off. It is true that a million men would spring to arms in this country in time of emergency; but it also is true they would not all have modern rifles and equipment. War materials cannot be manufacmodern rifles and equipment. War materials cannot be manufactured within a year or even two. When one considers that South and Central America offer potential bases for foreign nations; that most of the air forces of South America are German; that the Lima conference is a sort of straw in the wind; that the so-called Peace of Munich has implications which cannot be ignored—then one must admit that not only is it reasonable for this country to increase its armaments but that it is imperative.

GEORGIA TECH'S PART Vocational education is to receive unexpected help from the proposed program. The government will turn to the vocational schools and ask them to train thousands of airplane mechanics. This means the schools will receive extra equipment and, eventually, extra financial help from the government. Vocational education, which must supply the answer to many of the nation's economic problems, is being turned to by the government in its plans to strengthen the nation's defenses.

Georgia Tech, already in possession of one of the Guggenheim schools of aeronautics, will be called upon to help train pilots. This will mean the augmenting of the R. O. T. C. units there with personnel and with funds. Georgia Tech also has a vocational depart-It is a tremendous program. What congress will do with it remains to be seen. It is almost assured congress will adopt a program calling for a real increase in armaments. There are signs that perhaps some of the rulers across the sea are just waiting for April. They don't start wars in winter. None of them really wants war but the dictators can't quit. They've got to keep going. Until stopped. There is no disposition on the part of the United States to go to war or to enter a war in Europe. But there is every dispo-sition not to be so weak that this nation cannot be a moral and a physical force if the necessity arises. There are worse things than

Man May Work For Pride or Profit. But the Reward He Asks Is at Home

By Robert Quillen.

"Get your happiness out of your work," said Stevenson, "or you what happiness is.'

Like other half-truths, this one has long been accepted as a gem of wisdom; yet Stevenson himself got his happiness from another source. There is in all literature no finer tribute than his description of his wife.

"Trusty, dusky, vivid, true," it begins, and finishes with the lines:

"Teacher tender, comrade wife,

"A fellow-farer true through life, 'Heart-whole and soul free

"The august Father gave to me." It is true that work provides pleasure and pride and contentment and a deep satisfaction. The builder, the gardener and the craftsmen rejoice in their skill and accomplishment; and work may increase their happiness or serve as a compensation for loss or anodyne for grief; but those fortunate ones who have the capacity for true happiness must obtain it from a more elemental and more natural source, as Stevenson did. An unknown and rather cynical philosopher of the second century, whose work is called Ecclesiastes, tells the story in few words: "Live joyfully with the wife whom thou lovest all the days of the life of thy vanity, which he hath given thee under the sun, for that is thy portion in life, and in thy labor.' Comradeship between men is a rare and precious privilege, but men have other interests to share their loyalty. A mother's like that of a sister or a child, is shared with others. Only the love of a wife, or the love of a man for his mate, is heart-whole and

It is friendship made perfect—a comradeship without doubts or secrets or dissimulation or self-interest. It is complete trust and faith and understanding and oneness. The late great Edison and his wife shared a secret that was typical of happy comradeship. Both knew the Morse code, and when they sat together in public, each placed a hand on the other's knee and tapped out private comments. Others, across the room from one another, convey a message and share a joke by means of a smile or a wink. Only comrades do that.

Never to know such comradeship is never to know happiness.

to have it and lose it and find no other is to live in a world of ashes and go heart-hungry to the end. In a world where many are mismated and secretly hungering, the fortunate man is not the one who has wealth and fame, but the one who goes home to a comrade's welcoming love.

which their citizens are entitled. It is not contended that any sysitself could remedy such a situa-tion. Rather, it is hoped that home rule would act as an inducement of the cardinal principles of home of checking this gradual destruction of local governmental units and adoption of measures insuring continued self-governments, a move which is it commands the general assembly mandatory to any efficient administration.

Like municipalities, the powers counties of Georgia state constitution, and they have only such authority as is conferred upon them by statute. In addition they are handicapped for the most part by constitutional require-ments of uniformity in their governmental structures, which impedes a solution of local problems not prevalent to the state at large.

Of all Georgia legislators, only one — Honorable Joe Burgin — to our knowledge, has ever taken an active interest in the cause of home rule, and his bill now famously known as the "Burgin Home Rule Bill," has suffered defeat at the hands of first one and then the other branch of the general assembly for almost a decade.

Like cities, the counties of Georgia also are hidebound by inflexible constitutional debt limitaions, and in addtion by constitutional limitations making it necessary in many instances that the constitution itself be amended rom time to time to give counies the authority to meet the constantly increasing demands for wider fields of local governmental

There is a provision in the Geor-gia constitution ratified in November, 1924, which purports to authorize the consolidation of city and county governments, and it was so indicated on the ballot when it was offered to the people for ratification.

This provision, however, limited in its application having reference only to cities of a population exceeding 52,900 according to the census of 1920 and to counties in which the municipality is

No power of consolidation is munities affected. This power to consolidate is lodged exclusively in the legislature, which body, in the very nature of things totally unfamiliar with the need of such local consolidations, but which could if it chose, refuse to permit a consolidation even though a vast majority of citizens in the affected governments want-

There is a further provision in this amendment to the effect that it shall not apply to cities, mu-nicipalities, or towns, the corporate limits of which are included with-in more than one county nor to the counties in which said mu-nicipalities are located. Bars Atlanta.

This precludes the consolidation of Atlanta and Fulton county governments. It is inconceivable that the people or the legislature would knowingly deprive Atlanta and Fulton county of the advantages of a merger if they so desired. Yet this provision stands as an effectual bar to such a procedure ever if every person living inside At-lanta and Fulton county wished to consolidate their governments.

There is another provision in the state constitution authorizing the merger of two counties by a two-thirds vote of the county to be merged, but it too is not self executing, but requires an en-abling act by the legislature to make it effective.

A further objection to the provision is that it provides no machinery through which the people themselves may initiate a merger.

Again it might be pointed out that the legislature is not as com-petent to judge the advisability of the merger of particular counties as would be the inhabitants of the counties involved. It also is an extremely debatable question as to whether the legislature would wish to set itself up as a final judge in merger matters. The question of legislative courtesy invoked by dissenting members is again shown and its ill effects are monstrated.

It is true that the provision requires the approval of the merger by a two-thirds vote of the qualified electors to initiate the move-

Another question very properly presents itself. Why, if the people in both counties want to merge, should it not become effective at once without further action by the legislature?

Withhold Rights. These constitutional inhibitions effectually withhold from the counties of the state the right to local self-government. In addi-tion, counties for the most part, are governed by special acts of the legislature, while ostensibly the legislative acts of all, they are in reality the acts of the local delegations and are the acts invoked

ries on the law of municipal cor-porations has defined the purposes of county government as follows: each of the two houses—must vote favorably on constitutional amendments before they are offered to the electorate of Georgia. "A county organization is created almost exclusively with a view to the policy of the state at large, The bill proposes the reapeal f Paragraph 16 of Section 7 of Article 3 of the constitution relating to the passage of local and special bills and the substitution in lieu "No local, or general bills with

First that the powers to be exbe constitutionally defined.

Secondly, that the powers granted should be self-executing, that is, that the inhabitants of the community shall be given the power to initiate and adopt themselves the changes that they desire made in their local government structure. Dr. Gallup's latest X-ray shows American voters disapproving the holding of jobs by women whose husbands are capable of support-ing them. The vote reflects the current fact that there are not jobs to go around. If labor-saving machinery is going to mean a continuing excess of human labor supply over demand, there is likely to be criticism of the holding of jobs not only by married women whose husbands can support them, but even by women who really need the money. Josh Hallard Dies in Auto Accident; Jane Writes That Gavin Has Disappeared

BY RUBY M. AYRES.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED BEFORE: WHAT HAS HAPPENED BEFORE:

Jane Brookes' mother dies soon after her godmother bequeaths her 3,000 pounds Her sister, Pamela, is a year older, and Dulcie, the eldest, is the blonde beauty of the family. Gavin Montford returns to England from Canada, visiting his uncle, Dr. Bingham, the Brookes' neighbor. He meets Jane when the old Brookes' car stops suddenly and he, out for a walk, discovers the only trouble is the gas tank is empty. Going with her for gasoline he learns she loves poetry and is superstitious, especially about seeing the new moon through glass or reflected in water. At lunch the next day he tells her his parents died while he was in school and that he went to Canada and tried several things, with little success. Almost abruptly he asks her to marry him. She insists he use her money to start in business so they can marry soon. Although Dulcie, back from London says Josh Hallard, a wealthy man of 50, wants to marry her, she makes opportunities to be with Gavin and Jane is jealous. Josh comes to see Dulcie, misses her and asks Jane to lunch with him. Gavin is resentful when Jane says he has changed since Dulcie's return but denies he loves her. Dulcie says she wants only Josh's money, that Gavin attracts her more and that she was with him last night. Jane, rushing off to London, throws Gavin's ring out the train window. She has lunch with Josh, he asks her to marry him, but she says she doesn't love him. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

Double Birthday Celebration Is Planned at Gaymont Farm Today

Ellis Gay and Robert Alston II Observe Twenty-First Birthday By Sally Forth

TWENTY-ONE years ago today, with Atlanta covered in a blanket Ansley Park to deliver Ellis Gay to the Ewell Gay household and to deposit Robert Alston at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs.

In celebration of their 21st birthday, Ellis and Bob, whose friend-ship began that cold wintry night in 1917, will assemble a group of their friends at Gaymont, the farmhouse of Ellis' mother, Mrs. Ewell Gay on Powers Ferry road.

The point of this story is the fact that the new dining room suite did not arrive in time for the party! Guests appeared in jovial mood, for the hosts were known for their gracious hospi-tality. In the meantime, the cou-

Ellis, you know, bears the name of his grandfather, the late William D. Ellis Jr., whose name is prominently linked with this city's early development. Bob has the distinction of carrying the name of his late uncle, Robert Alston, whose legal career was one of the most successful ever recorded in the history of this state. In tribute to those whose names they bear, the boys have invited Ellis' grandmother, Mrs. W. D. Ellis Jr., and Bob's aunt, Mrs. Robert Alston, to assist at their birthday party.

Their parents will also be on hand to help celebrate their sons' arrival to young manhood, and Sally hears that many surprises are in store for the 21-year-olds in the way of gifts and congrat-

Supper will be served from a table laden with delicious viands and accompaniments. A whole roasted suckling pig, raised on Gaymont farm, will grace one end of the table and a stuffed roast turkey, another product produced from the farm, will reign over the other end of the birthday table. For the center of the table Bob's mother has prepared a large birthday cake with 21 candles to shed soft gleams over the merry scene.

During supper the voices of negro singers will be heard from outside the farmhouse singing familiar spirituals. Amid shouts of "Happy Birthday," the guests will depart at midnight and Bob will return to make ready to re-sume his studies at the University of Georgia and Ellis will be-gin packing for his return trip to Middletown, Ohio, where he is engaged in business.

SALLY learned with delight of the ingenuity of a pair of Atlanta's popular hosts who recent-ly proved themselves capable of coping with an extremely difficult situation. The couple had recently moved into their new home, and had invited a group of friends to call on a designated evening for a housewarming. The hostess was quite excited, for she had ordered a new dining room suite, due to arrive the day before the party, and she had planned a very artistic decorative scheme to grace

Among gay parties given for members of the younger set this week was the tea at which Miss Mia Lotte Hecht, who appears at the left in above picture, and Miss Marian Barr, shown at the right, entertained at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hecht. The party honored Miss Loyer Zahner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenyon Zahner, of Greenville, S. C., formerly of Atlanta. Miss Zahner appears in the center.

Dear Miss Chatfield: In three years' time I won several beauty contests, so you know I'm not hard to look at, but I'm not an eye filler husband. Since we were married four years ago a skirt has never escaped his attention. We go to a movie and any kid that will flirt gets his winks. We go to a party and before you can turn around he has a hand to hold or a pair of lips to kiss, though apparently he adores me when we are at home. He doesn't dink, smoke, curse, gamble, has no weakness for any of the things chassis catch a man's eye but the helped by exercise, and a severe that modern people indulge in— but flirting. By Exercise Count your blessings, child,

By Ida Jean Kain.

Should a diabetic exercise? With 500,000 diabetics in this country, that is a question frequently ask-. . . and the answer is yes, maybe, and no.

To be more explicit, here is the opinion of Dr. E. P. Joslin, of the Harvard Medical School, who is a leading authority on the subject:
"A mild diabetic is helped by exercise, a moderate diabetic may be diabetic is harmed by exercise."

You should, of course, be under the supervision of your own phy-sician, but unless the diabetes is severe, you probably would bene-fit from exercise. As Dr. Joslin Dear Miss Chatfield: A few has explained, in utilizing the months ago my brother was marmuscles a large part of the carbohydrates is burned, thereby lower-

Analyses of such surveys indicate that women have a higher diabetic tendency than men. They develop the disease after 40, the age at which they begin to take on weight.

Dr. Joslin is emphatic in his view that "Overnutrition is as harmful to the treatment of diabetes as it is encouraging to the development," and he stresses the importance of a diet providing milk, eggs, fruit, vegetables, lean meat, cereals.

Carbohydrate tolerance, how-ever, varies with the individual, and the diet in all cases must be adjusted for your case by your Such great advances have been made in the treatment of this dis-ease that the life expectancy of the diabetic has been extended from five years to 25 years—and most diabetics live to die of something else, including old age. Doctors are even hopeful that a cure may be found.

My Day: Women in Congress Are Becoming Fewer

WASHINGTON.-I have just seen a statement given out by the National League of Women Voters on the trend, which seems fairly well established, of women's indifference to public affairs. In the course of 10 years, the actual number of women in state legislatures has dropped from 149 in 36 states to 129 in 28 states. This is an indication of the fact that women, instead of taking a greater interest in public affairs, are taking less interest.

In congress the number of women has dropped from nine to five. It is evidently not just an aversion to holding public office, but a general lack of interest on the part of women either actively participating, or supporting women, who appear to be fitted for active participation. I deplore this and would like women in general to think about it, for it does mean that they are not bringing to bear all the influence they could in favor of such things as seem to them important in the life in their community.

I have a feeling that it is more important for women to begin their interest in public affairs in their local communities. They can hold office there, or promote other women for office, so that in local communities the balance would be 50-50 between men and women, and the women's point of view would be a vital part of every community decision. If this could be done, there would undoubtedly be a gradual growth of interest which would spread to state and national affairs. We had a quiet evening last night and saw a newsreel and a movie called "Trade Winds," which everyone enjoyed. This morning, my niece, Miss Eleanor Roosevelt, and her brother, Henry Roosevelt, have gone off sight-seeing with Miss Anne Grant and some other friends. They will probably be busy most of the afternoon answering the telephone and making arrangements for various guests who have lost their admission cards for tonight's party and do not know what to do about this or that situation. I think the modern custom of having ushers at these parties of the young is a pleasant one. Now every usher is in charge of a certain number of girls and it is his duty to see that no boy or girl dance together so long that they may wish to be separated.

I am going to lunch with some old friends today and then I expect to have a rather interesting group of people for tea, including Miss Linda Littlejohn, who is a leader of women's movements in

Wallace Wade Pessimistic Over Duke's Rose Bowl Chances

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 28.—Santa Anita, which very ambiguously has the same first name as Mister Claus, throws its gates open to the public over the week end, and for a goodly number of weeks thereafter casual visitors will agree that the late Barnum was a master of understatement. He said there was ONE born every minute. Undoubtedly they come in large

It was somewhere in the neighborhood of a year ago that I attended Santa Anita for the first time. As a matter of fact, it was on Christmas Day. And Santa Anita, as usual, was no for several beautious stars to sit

This track, as any other, holds that it is better to receive than to give. I recall that $10,000,000 was the pari-mutuel handle that day. The betting figures for the entire meeting amounted to $50,000,000.

I always think of this when I think of the efforts made, now and then, to legalize hoss racing in Georgia. Talk about a drug on the market-what a white elephant hoss racing is to a community!

The merchants yell even in a community as rich as Los Angeles. People find it more convenient to put their bobs on the hosses than pay their bills.

I do not wish to appear in the light of a reformer, but no community needs a race track designed for the bangtails. There are too many other ways for a municipality to go bankrupt.

Los Angeles is welcome to Santa Anita. I expect a goodly part of the take comes from the money of the movie stars. They're lavish, anyway. Anything for a show. And if they were not spending it at the race track, they'd be down at Reno arranging to start alimony payments.

Maybe Santa Anita is a good thing, after all. It helps keep the movie stars' minds off the divorce courts.

TAKING IN THE SIGHTS.

The city fathers had best not pour any concrete in the neighborhood of Grauman's Chinese theater while the Tech boys are still in town. They certainly would leave some footprints to remain alongside the famous.

The Jackets were handicapped in their sight-seeing by thoughts of the California game while in San Francisco, God's country, but they have nothing heavier weighing on their minds now than finances.

Just to give you an idea of the difference between San Francisco and Los Angeles, there was an elaborate race track near 'Frisco. Lack of patronage closed it up.

It seems, somehow, that the people of 'Frisco, really the old stock or descendants of the state, have some sense of values. They spend their money on stable things and stable hosses.

They are entirely different cities, of course. One is of old lineage and inclined to conservatism, while the other is a melting pot. It is a polygot community, with sooner or later the elite of sharp practice gentlemen and ladies the world over dropping in to pay a call.

But it seems I was talking about the Tech boys and their gay tours of the city. They have seen Hollywood and have visited some of the sets on the Paramount lot.

It is just as well, too, I must report, that time was limited It is just as well, too, I must report, that time was limited around the studios. The glamour gals might have stolen a few trick. They are adding a great deal hearts. And yet, to be truthful about it, most of the boys are to their education.

I want Mr. Ralph McGill to be sure and pointedly ask Mr. Griffin what it was he said about a marine on this trip.

WHAT? NO FOOTPRINTS!

Ten years ago, come January 1, Earl Mann was out here to see Tech and California play in the Rose Bowl game. And I was sure that I would find his footprints in the lobby of the Chinese theater. But diligent search has failed to reveal them.

I did go off on one wrong track. For a minute I thought I spied the footprints of a Brewer. Not a Milwaukee brewer, but an Atlanta Brewer. There is one in every town. That is, an Atlanta Brewer. Never will forget the last Dixie series at Beaumont, Texas.

Capus Brewer could not get away from business to accompany the team. Oby likewise was tied up. So we breather a sigh and figured we had seen the last of the Brewers for a spell. But so help me if their sister didn't appear in Beaumont and root for the Crackers. That settled it. Because her husband was a G-man.

SADLY LACKING IN SPEED, SAYS

Haven't More Than 15 First-Class Men, Moans Ceach.

By JACK TROY. LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 28.— Wallace Wade is carrying on the coast's propaganda against Duke in elaborate style. Speaking of the Piedmont Panty-Waists, which is the new nickname for his Blue Devils, Wade told newspapermen

"We are sadly lacking in speed at the ends and in our backfield. "We aren't brilliant at anything, but we are fairly good in most departments of the game. "We don't have many men who can play. In fact, we haven't more than 15 first-class men. "We never made any substitutions throughout the season because it would have greatly weakened the team.

NOT BEST PUNTER. "I don't know as I could rate Tipton the finest punter I ever coached. It seems to me Sugar Cain did fairly well."

Wade was clothed in pessimism and yet subtle to the nth degree. They don't expect much of Duke on the coast. And Wade is, as said, carrying out the propaganda. He will have them thinking by the end of the week that Duke will be fortunate to have 11 men ready for the kickoff. Wade, of course, never used more than 15 players while at Alabama. He always was one to let the boys who could take it play 60 minutes. He has several on the present squad who can go

What Stocks Did.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(AP)— Speculative buying in armament shares helped prod the stock market out of its year-end drift today into a brisk upturn.

The aircraft shares, recently hit by a surge of profit-taking, got a strong lift. President Roose-velt's proposal for training 20,000 youths yearly for the air services was taken widely in Wall Street as a hint the administration was determined to bring before the new congress a big defense pro-

Three of the arms favorites in the stock exchange list—Bethle-hem Steel, Bendix Aviation and Electric Boat-touched the highest prices recorded this year on advances of around 2 to 3 points. Most of the market climbed out of an early decline to join the "war babies" on the year-end

Transactions increased to 2,164,-080 shares, the largest since November 10, from 1,236,280 yesterday as buying overpowered the selling. It was the broadest market since October 21, 1937, with 1.001 separate issues involved in the day's transactions.

Fractionally higher in the curb were United Gas, Electric Bond & Share, Lakeshore and American Superpower. Sherwin-Williams and Pittsburgh Plate Glass each Sherwin-Williams lost more than 2. Turnover of 586,000 shares was the largest since October 21 last year and compared with 350,000 Tuesday.

southern selling. A spurt of cov- scarce, that trade being on ering in January carried that delivery up 11 points from an early low when only three additional delivery notices were issued. Other months responded to the nearmonth action and later received addtional support, especially from Bombay and trade sources. The advance attracted covering late in the session and prices sold at the highest levels for the day in the closing dealings. Exports 18,970, making 1,964,-531 so far this season. Port re-ceipts 10,186; United States port stocks 3,016,002.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.-(A)-The bond market overcame early hesitation today to score substantial gains on the largest trading volume of the year.

Total dealings came to $15,499,000 face value, a record since October 19, 1937. Yesterday's to-tal was $10,883,550.

Year-end tax selling was a fac-tor in the largely increased turn-over, it being the last day for such transactions on a "regular" delivery basis. For the remainder of the week tax sales will have to be on cash terms.

Inclined to irregularity during much of the session, the market stiffened near the end in sympathy with the buoyant action of the stock list. Rail loans ac-counted for a large share of the gains running from fractions to around 3 points. Bonds of Baltimore & Ohio were especially active, accounting for a considerable part of total turn-over in the rail division.

AVERAGE PRICE.
NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 28.—
(P)—The average price of middling cotton today at ten southern spot markets was ten points higher at 8.61 cents a pound: average for the past thirty market days, 8.47 cents a pound.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(P)—
Cotton advanced today when trade and foreign buying revealed a scarcity of contracts. March advanced from 8.33 to 8.47 and closed at 8.46, with final prices 12 to 15 points net higher.
The market opened 3 points higher to 2 lower, with the effects of steadier Liverpool cables off-set by moderate liquidation and southern selling. A spurt of covarier in language in language in language in language in local spin in language in
